MIDDLE SCHOOL: GREAT GROWTH, EMERGING POTENTIAL

St. Elizabeth Ann Seton (SEAS) Middle School is the bridge that prepares students academically, emotionally and spiritually for secondary education. Leadership skills, character development, and higher level critical thinking skills are essentials to helping students at this age become comfortable with themselves. Here, students begin to practice the art of making positive decisions in an environment where expectations are high, guidelines are clear, and encouragement, ever-present.

- Character, compassion and commitment – those three words comprise the code of conduct at our middle school.
- The close-knit environment fosters self-esteem, and allows students to develop their personal strengths and leadership abilities.
- Teachers nurture students' emerging independence while providing appropriate levels of support and supervision.

Catholic schools aren't there to make our young people upwardly mobile, nor to assure them of a wrinkle-free life...They are there precisely to take all that away from them, to lure them to give up security and come out onto the road...make them the apostles they were ordained to be. – Archdiocese of Sante Fe
